۴	متن زیر را به دقت بخوانید و به سئوالات داده شده هر قسمت پاسخ دهید. It's a morning habit for millions of people to read the paper. This simple habit is causing damage to the environment. In a recent study, researchers from the University of California found that reading the news on a computer would be much better for the planet than reading the paper version. For their study, the researchers focused on the New York Times, which has more subscribers per ^۷-day week than any other newspaper in the United States. About ^{۱,۲} million subscribers get it on weekdays, and ^{۱,۷} million get the Sunday edition. Producing the paper uses up a lot of energy and resources. One year's worth of the New York Times weighs about ^{۲۳۶} kilograms. It takes about ^{۲۲,۷۰۰} liters of water each year to make the paper for just one reader. The same processes release about ^{۶۶۰} kilograms of carbon dioxide, a gas that contributes to global warming. Printing and transporting the newspaper release even more. The researchers found that, just by trying to stay informed, a single daily reader in Berkeley adds ^{۲۷۰} kilograms of extra carbon dioxide to the atmosphere every year. The New York Times also happens to be available in electronic form. An individual reader using the electronic version would be responsible for producing just ^۰ kilograms of carbon dioxide. A- Choose the correct answer based on the passage. ۴۰- Which of the following can best explain the main idea of the passage? a) Global warming is worse because more people are reading newspapers. b) The future is certainly bright for digital editions. c) Readers are wise enough to choose what to read. d) Staying informed is necessary, but it can result in global warming.	۱۲

Khayyam (18 May 1048 – 4 December 1131) was a Persian philosopher, mathematician, astronomer and poet. He also wrote treatises on mechanics, geography, mineralogy, music, and Islamic theology. Born in Nishapur in North Eastern Iran, at a young age he moved to Samarkand and obtained his education there. Afterwards he moved to Bukhara and became established as one of the major mathematicians and astronomers of the medieval period. He is the author of one of the most important treatises on algebra written before modern times, the Treatise on Demonstration of Problems of Algebra. He also contributed to a calendar reform.

Outside Iran and Persian-speaking countries, Khayyam has had an impact on literature and societies through the translation of his works and popularization by other researchers. The greatest of such impact was in English-speaking countries; the English scholar Thomas Hyde (1636–1703) was the first non-Persian to study him. The most influential of all was Edward FitzGerald (1809–83), who made Khayyam the most famous poet of the East in the West through his celebrated translation and adaptations of Khayyam's rather small number of quatrains (rubaiyat) in the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

Omar Khayyam died in 1131 and is buried in the Khayyam Garden at the mausoleum of Imamzadeh Mahruq in Nishapur. In 1963 the mausoleum of Omar Khayyam was constructed on the site by Hooshang Seyhoun.
